

LIVE

Politics Business Social Tech & Sci Culture Picture Video CHINA AMERICA AFRICA

AMERICA

WATCH LIVE WORLD TODAY GLOBAL BUSINESS CHINA 24 THE HEAT
BIG STORY AMERICAS NOW FULL FRAME ABOUT US

The Heat: Looking back and ahead in technology

The Heat

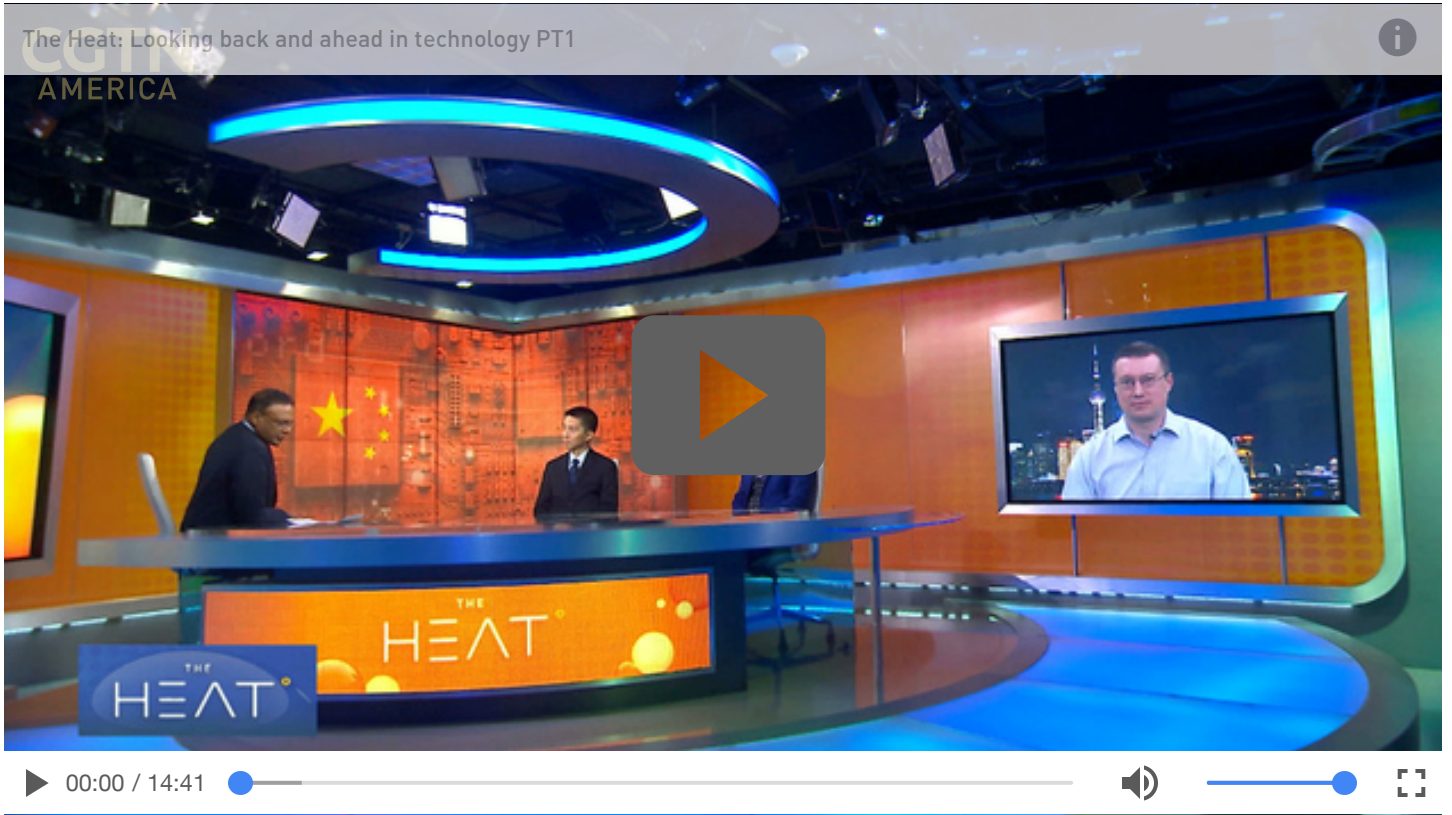

January 5, 2017

Innovation. It's a major buzz word in China. As the country faces a changing economy, it looks to innovate its way to the next phase of growth.

From start-ups to new patents, entrepreneurs are using the influx of government support to launch new businesses. So, will China be the new Silicon Valley?

Joining us to explore China's tech innovation:

- Xiaochen Zhang, founding partner of New Development Ventures, which promotes innovation in China.
- William Bao Bean, managing director of Chinaccelerator, the first software incubator in China.
- Dan Ye, entrepreneur and co-founder of CollegeNode, where international students can find American universities.

Joining us for this part of the program:

- Anne Lise Kjaer, a futurist and founder of Kjaer Global, a trend forecasting agency.
- Michale Nunez, technology editor of Gizmodo.

